

Children's Literature in Education

Volume 30, Number 1

March 1999

- Tolkien's Creation Myth in The Silmarillion—Northern or Not? John Gough 1
Tolkien's work is usually thought to stem from Northern mythic sources—but is this so?
- The Hidden Curriculum and the Child's New Discourse: Beverly Cleary's *Ramona Goes to School Linda Benson 9
Beverly Cleary's most loved heroine learns to toe the line in school; what do her readers learn about school life and subjectivity?
- Creating New Generations of Readers Roy Blatchford 31
A scheme to promote reading, already widespread in the U.S., reaches out into Britain
- Lessons from Linnea: Linnea in Monet's Garden as a Prototype of Radical Change in Informational Books for Children Linnea Hendrickson 35
The thoughts and feelings of the exploring child become part of a new kind of information book
- Navigating CD-Roms: An Exploration of Children Reading Interactive Narratives Rebecca James 47
The interaction between young readers and two CD-Rom texts
- Weaving World Understanding: The Importance of Translations in International Children's Literature Rosie Webb Joels 65
An exploration of what books in translation and some prize-winning titles in particular can offer to English-speaking readers

Children's Literature in Education

Volume 30, Number 2

June 1999

Errol Le Cain: *The Very Best Aspects of Book Illustration

Matthew Eve

85

A comprehensive introduction to the work of an outstanding artist

The Giver* and Shade's Children: Future Views of Child Abandonment and Murder

Melissa Gross

103

Sometimes the abandonment and murder of children is more than a device to get the plot moving

A Young Person's Guide to the Fictions of Junk

David Rudd

119

The first in a new series on controversial books examines the award-winning Junk

Power, Food, and Eating in Maurice Sendak and Henrik Drescher: Where the Wild Things Are,
In the Night Kitchen, and *The Boy Who Ate Around

Kara Keeling and Scott Pollard

127

An exploration of the role of excess and revulsion in children's stories

The European Picture Book Collection

Penni Cotton

145

A Europe-wide project aims to increase understanding of other cultures through picture books

Children's Literature in Education

Volume 30, Number 3

September 1999

- Enquiring Mind, Rebellious Spirit: Alice and Pinocchio as Nonmodel Children Ann Lawson Lucas 157
Two famous nineteenth century characters share an inclination towards irreverent subversion
- Roots That Go Beyond Big Hair and a Bad Hair Day: Nappy Hair Pieces Neal A. Lester 171
A controversial children's book—who should read it, and to whom
- Expanding the View of First-Person Narration Andrea Schwenke Wylie 185
An exploration of the complexities of story-telling in the first person
- The Portrayal of Clergy as Parents in Juvenile Fiction Over Two Decades Patricia Tipton Sharp and Dorothy Schleicher 203
How do the clergy fare in stories for young people?
- Social Issues: Connecting Children to Their World Elizabeth Streble 213
Picture books in a frightening world

Children's Literature in Education

Volume 30, Number 4

December 1999

- The Rise and Rise of Harry Potter Nicholas Tucker 221
An analytical appraisal of an extraordinary publishing phenomenon
- Reading Little Girls' Texts in the 1920s:
Searching for the "Spirit of Childhood" Cathryn Halverson 235
A historical vogue for the writings of small girls illuminates some intriguing questions of gender
- Homesick and Homecoming: Jean Fritz's
Search for Childhood Weimin Mo and Wenju Shen 249
Emotion, experience, and history play a role in a complex exploration of a conflicted childhood
- One and Inseparable: Interdependent Storytelling
in Picture Storybooks Denise E. Agosto 267
An analysis of many different ways that words and pictures can spark off each other in picture books
- Acknowledgments to Reviewers 281

